McKay, Hansen square off on issues

Republican aspirant for congress, James Hansen, challenges McKay in his voting record.

By MARILYN HANSEN
Universe Staff Writer

Jim Hansen, Republican candidate for congress, challenged the voting record and long stay in Washington of Gunn McKay, Democrat incumbent, in a forum held Thursday.

Hansen said McKay had not voted for a balanced budget until this year. McKay responded, "When the bill you want hasn't come up yet you must defeat the others until the one you want comes."

Referring to Geneva and the Central Utah Project as the "meat and potatoes" of the budget, Hansen charged Congress with "buying junk food all over the place."

Citing food stamps for strikers which have increased 253 percent in the last 10 years and the environmental protection services expenses which have also increased 994 per cent, Hansen contended, "How do you pay for it if you don't have any money?"

Although Hansen claimed to know more about McKay's voting record than the congressman himself, the Democrat incumbent said he had voted on more than 12,000 bills during his terms in office and Hansen has taken his record out of context.

Making an analogy to taking the scriptures out of context, McKay quoted, "Judas Iscariot went out and hanged himself, go and do likewise and do it quickly." The congressman claimed Hansen has made about as much sense of his voting record.

McKay continued, "If everyone had voted the way I had this year we would have had a balanced budget and would have had it for the past three years."

Contending that congress has been a one-party system for too long and has reached its "diminishing line" Hansen declared the need for a change in parties.

The Republican nominee cited the example of the difficulty former President Franklin D. Roosevelt had because of illness in a meeting with Josef Stalin and Winston Churchill concerning the dividing of Europe. Hansen said because of that meeting the 22nd amendment evolved, limiting the president to two terms in office.

Top Soviet official resigns

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, a member of the top Soviet leadership for 16 years, died his post Thursday because of illness. He was replaced by his first deputy, 75-year-old Nikolai Podgorniy.

Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev announced Kosygin, 76, had decided to step down from the second most powerful position in the country during the meeting of the Supreme Soviet, the national parliament.

Kosygin has long been associated with Brezhnev, his takeover of the premiership further underlining the president's supremacy in the Kremlin hierarchy.

Kosygin came to power in 1964 in a leadership struggle with Communist Party chief Brezhnev and President Nikolai Podgorniy following the ouster of Nikita Khrushchev.

At the time, Kosygin was boss of the Soviet economy and of the day-to-day running of the government, and served as a much-traveled diplomatic troubleshooter.

Western analysts said they believe his departure will have little immediate impact on the direction of Soviet policy.

Brezhnev and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko are widely believed to run foreign affairs. Kosygin's grip on economic policy has loosened as his health has deteriorated, although the resignation could be seen as a symbol of change for the deeply troubled economy.

Kosygin, who reportedly suffered at least two heart attacks in recent years, has not been seen in public since Aug. 3, closing day of the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow. He was absent when Brezhnev announced his decision to step down.

"He has been trying to resign for some time," a Soviet source who knows Kosygin's family said. "He just wanted to rest, to fish. But other Soviet leaders have been reluctant. Perhaps they've been wondering how to replace him."

Tikhonov, a deputy premier since 1966, was named Kosygin's top deputy four years ago and stood in for him frequently during the premier's illnesses.

The new premier and Brezhnev trained as metallurgical engineers at the same Ukrainian institute in the early 1930s, and later worked together in the Dnepropetrovsk region of the Ukraine.

He traveled to West Germany earlier this year for trade talks, visited the United States with Khrushchev in 1959 and has made several other foreign journeys.

Tikhonov's appointment highlights the advanced age of the Soviet leadership.

Brezhnev is 73, Tikhonov 75, Gromyko 71, party ideologist Mikhail Suslov 77, and Andrei Kirilenko, a top Brezhnev aide and party secretary, 74. The average age of the nation's ruling Politburo is now 69 years.

Tikhonov, whose wife's death was reported earlier this month, is believed to be in relatively good health. But because of his age, he is likely to be only a short-term replacement as premier.

McMahon may not play; right shoulder is injured

By ANNE THORNTON
Assistant Sports Editor

A right shoulder injury may keep quarterback Jim McMahon out of the sidelines during the Hawaii game Saturday.

According to offensive coordinator Doug Scovill, McMahon is "definitely not out, but we won't know until gametime."

"We won't play him unless he can put zip on the ball," said Scovill. "We don't know what he can do yet, because we haven't pushed him."

But team doctor Brent Prattley said McMahon will not play. "He can throw, but he can't zing the ball farther than ten or 20 yards."

"He can only float. There's no mustard on the ball," Prattley said.

McMahon, the nation's leader in passing efficiency and offense, has not practiced with the team all week, said Scovill. McMahon spent Wednesday and Thursday in Los Angeles with Prattley, where he was checked by orthopedic specialists who work with professional athletes teams. It was then determined the injury was a partial tear of the rotator cuff or the labrum that holds the shoulder in.

"A test on Monday at a hospital in Los Angeles will determine the extent of the problem," said Prattley. "He may not be able to play until next week, but that is still questionable. We know more as each day goes by."

It is likely McMahon sustained the injury in the last few minutes of the Utah State game, in the touchdown pass to Plater. It is considered a re-injury of a dislocated shoulder that McMahon received in 10th grade, said Prattley.

Scovill said the injury is similar to what Gifford Neilson suffered occasionally during his term at BYU. "These are temporary things, it happens all the time to quarterbacks," he said.

Royce Bybee will be ready if needed, Scovill said. "Bybee is always ready," he said.

Eric Kizmarick also took the trip to Hawaii and will be taken off redshirt status if McMahon does not play, Scovill said.

A good showing at Hawaii would give McMahon a chance to over another NCAA record for six straight games with over 300 yards passing. He currently shares the record of five games with Marc Wilson.

BU files suit against Utah County

By NANCY HARRIS
Assistant News Editor

BYU has filed suit against Utah County. This action is an attempt to recover certain parcels of land, which university owns, from the county's roll.

The state tax commission allocated tax-exempt property owned by charitable institutions in 1976, in an effort to make sure the land was used only for charitable activities, said Guy Burningham, deputy tax attorney.

The county assessor determined that certain parcels of land owned by BYU the BYU Alumni Association were not being used exclusively for charitable, non-profit purposes, Burningham explained.

"There are various pieces of property in question that are used for different purposes," said Burningham. "One of them is Aspen Grove, which is used for family camps of alumni and faculty."

"The facility was recently rented to the Central Utah Bar Association for a party," Burningham said. This use brings out the point in question: what is to be determined religious or charitable?

According to H. Hal Visick, BYU general counsel, other properties included in the suit are: the parking lot across the street from the BYU football stadium, land located below Cedarcrest Apartments which is being used as a shrub laboratory in conjunction with the U.S. Forest Service, one married student dorm and surrounding property and a lot located across the street from the Mission Training Center.

"There is a fair amount of money involved," said Visick, who estimated the taxes paid by BYU on these parcels since 1976 are $40,000.

BYU went before the Board of Equalization in 1976 to ask for tax relief but was turned down, said Burningham.

"The state tax commission also turned down the appeal to have the lands taken off the Utah County tax rolls," he said.

Voters must register soon

Utah County residents who want to cast their ballots on Nov. 4 have two more opportunities to register.

Officials at the Utah County election office said today is the last day their office will register citizens to vote. Those desiring to register today can do so until 4:30 p.m. in the election office at the County Building on the corner of University Avenue and Center Street in Provo.

Authorities at the election office say this week they have been registering between 200 and 300 citizens a day.

The final opportunity for registering will be on Oct. 28. Registration on the 28th won't take place at the County Building, but will be conducted at the various neighborhood registration headquarters from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Information regarding the location of neighborhood registration headquarters is available at the election office at the County Building.

Dr. Derrick to speak Sunday

Dr. Royden G. Derrick, one of the leaders of the LDS Church's First Council of the Seventy, will speak at the 14-stake LDS conference on Sunday at Marriott Center.

The public is invited to attend the p.m. meeting, which is under the supervision of Elder Pace, president of the BYU Stake.

The talk will be broadcast live over J-FM radio and televised on U-TV, Channel 11, three times: Tuesday at 8 p.m.; Wednesday at 2 p.m. and Sunday at 8 p.m.

Dr. Derrick was a prominent leader and civic leader in Utah prior to his call to serve as a member of the Quorum of the Seventy in October 1976. At the time of his call, he was serving as president of the Ireland Mission after having just completed service as mission president in northern England. Previously, he served as a member of the general superintendency of the Sunday Schools and has held a variety of administrative and teaching positions in the church.

The Salt Lake City native studied engineering at the University of Utah and organized the Western Steel Company in 1945. He was president for many years. From humble beginnings, the company expanded to become one of the leaders in the steel fabricating industry in the western United States.

From 1959 to 1965, he served as chairman of the governing body of the U of U. He also served as chairman of the board of the Salt Lake City Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco for several years as well as on many other business, civic and government boards. Currently he is chairman of the board of U & I, Inc.

Elder Derrick, executive director of the church's Genealogical Department for nearly two years, has been recognized for his service by receiving numerous local and national awards, including an honorary doctor of humanities degree from the U of U.

He is married to Allie Jean Olson and they have four children.

Security Police go to dorms

Coeds get sex-crimes lectures

By KEVIN ALLAN
Assistant News Editor

With a variation on the "scared straight" theme, BYU Security Police officers are visiting coed dorms on campus as part of a startling crime prevention program which focuses on sexual offenses.

Officers from the campus police force are visiting dorms with a two-hour presentation which includes statistics, examples of common sex offenses, and self-defense instructions. The information is shared with coeds in a frank and sometimes graphic manner described by one coed as "eye-opening."

"Scared Straight" was a television documentary chronicling a program in which convicted felons confronted delinquents in a graphic manner designed to make them aware of the realities of criminal life.

The intent of the BYU program is to make female students aware of "problems we have on campus, problems in this area, and problems in society in general," Detective Arnie Lemmon said during one recent dorm visit.

"We want you to be aware of it; it is happening all the time," Lemmon said. "We live in a society where we are going to have to stand up and say, 'I won't let this happen and go unreported.'"

The fact that a majority of sexual crimes on campus go unreported, Lemmon said, is a major reason BYU Security Police has trouble fighting the problem.

The detective began his presentation by asking how many girls had ever received obscene phone calls. Approximately 20 of the 50 coeds present raised their hands. When asked how many had reported the calls, only a fraction of those 20 responded.

Levee breaks, floods 6,300 acres

STOCKTON, Calif. — A railroad embankment levee collapsed with a train Thursday, unleashing water that flooded 6,300 more acres of delta farmland. The flood forced families to flee, and threatened pipelines that carry water for more than a million people.

The 150-foot rupture in the 60-year-old railroad embankment came as workers prepared to begin pumping floodwaters from the 5,700-acre Lower apt. 28. That break was sealed earlier this week. The new flooding left a total of about 12,000 acres — about 20 square miles — of farmland un-003. The 5 1/2-mile railway embankment, which separates Lower Jones from Upper Jones Tract, had been fortified with 30,000 tons of rocks. But it gave way as a Santa Fe Railway freight train crossed about 2:15 a.m., and water flooded the San Joaquin Delta farmland about 40 miles east of San Francisco Bay.

The rupture in the embankment widened Thursday, and officials said water to repair it could not begin until the water level stabilized.

Tribal warriors reinforce Iranians

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Tribal warriors reinforced Iranian battling Iraq invaders at the besieged oil centers of Abadan and Khorramshahr on Thursday, Iran said. The hard-hit Iranians also announced plans to ration home heating oil during the coming winter months.

Amid increasing diplomatic efforts to end the war, slightly more optimistic words appeared to be coming from Tehran about the release of the American hostages.

Iran sent jet bombers and attack helicopters against Iraqi units tightening their grip on battlefront Abadan and Khorramshahr, ten miles apart on the Shatt al-Arab waterway separating the two countries at the head of the Persian Gulf in the southern sector of the battle front.

An Iranian military communique said helicopter-borne squads attacked Iraqi-held positions in the northern war zone, near the border city of Sar-e Pol-e Sqah, according to a report from Tehran. Iran has sent units into the region almost daily for the past week, hoping to knock the Iraqis back to their own side of the frontier. Iraq claimed "Iran is now without refined oil" as a result of Iraq's artillery and ground assault on Abadan, the refining center that before the war supplied Iran with 60 percent of its oil for domestic use.

Tehran Radio announced that the war had forced the Iranian oil ministry to ration heating oil to 133 gallons a month per home, about half what a middle-income household normally uses each winter.

Clinton youth charged with murder

CLEARFIELD, Utah — John P. Miller Jr. was arraigned in 4th Circuit Court Thursday on charges of first-degree murder, kidnapping and forcible sexual abuse in the death of a 2-year-old Clinton girl.

The 15-year-old Clinton youth was scheduled to appear for a Dec. 5 preliminary hearing before Judge Cornell M. Jensen in 4th Circuit Court. Miller was certified to stand trial as an adult earlier this week by 1st District Juvenile Court Judge L. Kent Bachman.

The youth is charged in the strangulation death of Anne Haskison, whose body was found in the closet of an abandoned house Aug. 6. Miller was arrested the same day.

The Davis County Attorney's office requested the youth be certified as an adult because of the seriousness of the crime.

During the arraignment, Jensen denied a motion by defense attorney Tom Jones to have Miller released on bail.

"A reporting ratio like that is true for all sex offenses," Lemmon said. Unfortunately, he continued, it has been found that when minor sexual offenders go unreported, they can varyably go on to something worse," before being apprehended.

As an example of what not to do, Lemmon told of four coeds who were confronted on campus earlier this semester by a nude male. The coeds, Lemmon said, were within 20 feet of an emergency phone but instead of immediately calling Security Police they waited a half hour before reporting the incident.

"If a sexual offense is reported within five minutes of taking place," he said, "we have a 95 percent chance of catching and prosecuting the offender."

Lemmon explained the emergency phones located throughout campus are direct lines to the Security dispatcher. When one is picked up, he said, an alarm goes off in the office, and a map lights up, indicating which phone has been activated. Security officers have a response time to any location on campus of under five minutes, he said.

Unfortunately, he said, it is not sufficient to simply pull the receiver off its hook. Because so many false alarms have been received because of pranksters doing just that, he said, Security Police personnel need to hear someone on the phone before they will respond.

Asked what Security would do if someone was heard screaming over the phone, Lemmon assured the coeds, "We'd be there. Don't worry." An additional 20 emergency phones will be installed on campus this year, he added.

Lemmon related incident after incident of sexual offenses committed against coeds in such places as the Lee Library, the Harris Fine Arts Center, and in the dorms. Voyeurs, exhibitionists, window peepers and frottagers (offenders who grab the persons of females) are the more common sex offenders apprehended at BYU, he said. In one month this semester, the detective said, he himself arrested four voyeurs in the library.

The dialogue grew more frank as Lemmon addressed the problem of rape. "The FBI reports that between 50 and 90 percent of all rapes go unreported," he said. "We hypothesize that at this university we are near that 90 percent mark."

Although no rapes have been reported on campus in almost five years, Lemmon said, "We know they are going on. We know there have been girls down at Utah Valley Hospital who have been raped."

Several coeds expressed surprise to find that 35 percent of rapes are committed by people known to the victims. Lemmon said that BYU Security Police categorize rapes into two types: the "blitz rape," and the "date rape."

"Blitz rapes" are those in which the victim does not know the attacker, such as when a rapist confronts the first convenient female, he said. The "date rape" usually takes place of date, at a girlfriend apartment, or in similar circumstances, and committed by a fiancé boyfriend or date.

A videotape dealing with rape prevention methods is shown to the coeds at representation, and followed by a discuss-

Doobie Brothers to perform at Y; ticket distribution begins Saturday

Doobies' fans have four weeks to ready themselves for some brotherly "real love" because on Nov. 22 the Doobie Brothers are coming to town.

Tickets for the concert will go on sale Saturday at 10 a.m. Once again, the ticket distribution location will be announced over the radio. The announcement will be made over K-96 (FM) and KDOT (AM) 9 a.m. Saturday.

"The location is being announced this way to avoid overnight lines," said Linda Fogg, Social Office vice president. "I have a pretty good idea of the location, but a final decision must be made until Saturday morning. In order to give everyone an equal shot at good tickets, they won't be sold where there is a large crowd."

According to Miss Fogg, tickets will go on sale at 10 a.m. instead of 9 a.m. to allow Scott Williams and company — who work with special events — time to set up their facilities.

The seven-member band officially accepted the invitation to perform at the Marriott Center Thursday afternoon.

The concert in co-sponsored by ASBYU and United Artists.

"We understand they put on a fantastic show," said Miss Fogg. The band was seen in Phoenix, Ariz., by David M. Sorenson, dean of students, Jeff Duke, ASBYU president, and Scott Williams of the special events department.

"The report I got back was that the show was absolutely fantastic," Miss Fogg said.

Suspects in Trafalga theft apprehended by area police

A May 23 burglary case, in which the Trafalga Fun Center lost $1,450, may have been solved by Orem police.

Orem Police Detective Brent Morris said the department has two juvenile suspects in the case as a result of a tip received by another juvenile.

The suspects are 14- and 15-year-old brothers. Their names were withheld because they are minors.

According to Morris, during the questioning of another juvenile earlier this week, police received the information concerning the Trafalga break-in. The information led police to the suspects.

Morris said the suspects gained entry into the building by breaking through an overhead leading into the attic and then came through the ceiling into the concession area of the building.

The suspects stumbled onto a hidden safe which had accidentally been left unlocked. Four bags of money and 200 Fun Center passes worth $500 were taken.

Following the theft, other fun passes were marked in hopes that future use of unmarked passes would provide a lead in the case, Morris said. No such lead was obtained however.

Morris said an employee told the suspects that fun passes were being looked for at the center.

Police reportedly found the unused passes and the empty money bags in the closet of the suspects' room. None of the money was recovered but Morris said the brothers had purchased motorcycles in June.

Iran may add conditions before releasing hostages

Truman, Kennedy and Eisenhower were all in favor of limiting terms of office and said by so doing it would "tend to make ability rather than service the criterion for office," according to Hansen.

Hansen said, referring to the Democratic dominance of Congress, "Had Republicans been controlling, I would be pushing Democrats; it doesn't make sense that one party can do it," said Hansen.

On the other hand, McKay claimed seniority to be one of his biggest advantages, especially with 45 members from California and two from Utah. McKay is chairman of a subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee.

McKay said if a state has the chairmanship, one vote can make a difference and usually only members of the majority party get chairmanships.

"The school paid the taxes under protest and filed suit against the county to recover the tax money," said Burningham. BYU has filed suit each year since 1976, according to Viskic. "It is only now coming to trial because we are pressing it," he said.

A pre-trial has been held, and another will be held on Dec. 19, 1980. "In the pre-trial held last week, we agreed to come back in 60 days after working out the things that don't need to be proven," Viskic said.

There will be four year's taxes involved in the issue by the time the case is over, said Viskic.

probably will add new conditions for the release of the 52 American hostages, and if the United States does not meet the demands the captives may go on trial, Iranian leaders said Thursday.

At the same time, however, one of the officials, Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani, appeared to open the door a little further to a quick resolution of the case.

Rafsanjani, in an interview with the Paris newspaper Le Monde, was quoted as saying the Carter administration would not have to immediately fulfill all the conditions before the hostages are freed.

Some kind of "guarantees" of future compliance with the more difficult demands would be enough, he reportedly said.

The latest statements from Iran added to expectations of a break in the hostage crisis before Nov. 4, the date of the U.S. presidential election.

No commercials played

Everyone won't like all KRCL

By MARA CALLISTER
 Asst. Entertainment Editor

Students who long for an hour of uninterrupted '80s rock without any commercials or an indepth review of the MX system, or an oriental radio program can tune into KRCL Radio 92-FM.
 The station doesn't draw an audience continuously, but it does relieve students tired of fast food commercials and the "inside-outside, all around me" sounds of Dianna Ross.
 Broadcast out of Salt Lake City, the non-profit community station conglomerates main trends in music with public affair programs and community announcements. And surprisingly, it does it completely free of commercials. KRCL disc jockey Jared Held, says the only way the 10-month-old station stays on the air is through private funding.
 To encourage donations, the radio station began an eight-day radiothon last Sunday of broadcast specials.
 Tonight, "The Commodores," presented by The Urban Youth Fusion, will play from 7 to 10 p.m. on the 92 FM station.
 Then the station drops rock and roll and caters to the exotic in an eight-hour special of Polynesian, Greek and Asian shows Saturday. The programs will run until 4 p.m.
 Saturday evening from 7 to 1 p.m., KRCL will play jazz exclusively until its audience forgets the songs on American Top 40. Sunday should appeal to philosophy majors, nature lovers and returned missionaries from South of the Border. The program, running from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. combines native American philosophy of plants, animals and men, with rhythm and blues numbers as well as Brazilian music.
 But the most universally popular program will air Sunday night as the station winds up its fund-raising radiothon. "The Beatles Revisited" will trace the life of each Beatle and the story behind the Beatles' songs in a 7 to 11 p.m. special. During the broadcast, KRCL plans to give away Beatle prizes.

 Whether they play electronic rock or promote a community food bank or talk about insurance, Hunt says the station keeps its goal the same. "We basically try to give people information about what's current in the Utah area."

And what audience does the station try to reach? "Handicapped people, Senior Citizens, Spanish, Orientals, even progressive rock and new wave lovers," he said.
 More than 100 local volunteers round up and create the variety of programs used by KRCL but when it comes to disc jockeying, one staff member runs the station alone.
 That includes Linda Reeder, a programmer who has been blind since birth and uses special equipment to man the station.
 Held said the donations received during the radiothon will, it is hoped, "buy essential equipment and supplies" and give the volunteers funds to build up a supply of fresh programs.

Beach Boys high

"The last two years have been the most important and difficult time of our career. We had to decide whether what we had been involved in since we were teenagers had lost its meaning," said Carl Wilson, of The Beach Boys.
 Following the disappointing sales of 1978's M.T.U. Album, the Beach Boys were five individuals running in different directions, common bonds cast to the wind.
 Wilson explained, "We asked ourselves and each other the difficult question we'd often avoided in the past. We stopped fighting and started talking. In the end, it all came together again. Now, as we enter this new decade, we're as excited and committed and dedicated to our music and our ideals as we've ever been."
 Carl, Brian, Michael, Alan and Dennis have literally had to get to know each other all over again and once again they are brothers, friends, and cousins.
 The developments of the past 18 months explain the evolution of the band's new commitment.
 Longtime friend and unofficial sixth Beach Boy Bruce Johnston joined in the production of the band's first Caribou/CBS release, "The Beach Boys L.A.," and according to Wilson, "Bruce knew exactly what we needed. He stepped outside our immediate situation and gave us a new perspective."

 Next came Jerry Schilling as Wilson's personal manager. Schilling aided the band in the production of L.A. and carved out the group's first extensive touring situation since 1977.
 The resurgence of the Beach Boys came full circle with the making of "Keepin' The Summer Alive," the band's second Caribou/CBS release.

Dead Center

By JOHN JACKSON

At the season's start, Art Schlichter of Ohio State was the favorite choice as preseason All-America quarterback. Now Schlichter's fame is ebbing and the star of Jim McMahon is on the rise. McMahon is making shambles of competition for both the NCAA titles in passing efficiency and total offense.

Schlichter, meanwhile, is not even on the charts. Purdue senior Mark Herrmann must rank as McMahon's most reputable foe. Here's a look at a few others who stand in the all-America circle.

— Mark Herrmann, Purdue. A thinking man's quarterback. Three weeks ago the coaching staff decided to let Herrmann call all the plays. Since that decision, he has not been intercepted and the Boilermakers have not been defeated. On the year, they are 4-2, having lost only to unbeaten Notre Dame and UCLA.

Herrmann's stature among the nation's quarterbacks has increased steadily since he became the Boilermakers' starting quarterback in the second game of his freshman season. He needs only 71 yards and 32 completions to become the top passer in NCAA history.

An excellent, standup-type toser, his statistics this year are 113 of 182 attempts for 1,482 yards and 11 touchdowns. He has eight interceptions.

— Rich Campbell, Cal-Berkeley. An outside shot since his team is just 2-4 on the season. But his statistics are phenomenal. California passes the ball more often than BYU, yet Campbell has completed 72 percent of his aeriels. In the season opener he was awesome, completing 43 of 53 for 421 yards. Unfortunately, the Bears fumbled five times inside the 20-yard line and Florida State emerged a 41-13 victor.

Rich's accuracy is a growing legend. He has a fine touch, dropping the ball over the coverage like a noseball from a spitball pitcher.

The team has a passing drill in which the quarterbacks throw the football 25 yards through a hole scarcely larger than the diameter of the ball. On one occasion, Rich was locked in a duel with his outstanding backup, Gale Gilbert.

Both had threaded the ball through the hole eight straight times, while a third Cal quarterback had missed every attempt.

Rich settled the affair. The three quarterbacks stood in a line, each having a separate hole to shoot at. On the ninth throw Campbell fired the ball, knocked Gilbert's ball out of the air and zipped his own pass through Gilbert's hole.

His season statistics are 164 of 227 for 1,735 yards and seven interceptions. He does not challenge McMahon in passing efficiency because his yards per attempt are lower and because he is way down in touchdowns. He has only six.

— John Elway of Stanford. This sophomore sensation really busted onto the map four weeks ago when he directed the Cardinals to a 31-14 upset of then fourth-ranked Oklahoma. "Elway put the ball in their hands almost every time," Coach Barry Switzer of Oklahoma complained. When the Sooners put on a fierce rush, Elway dumped the ball off to a back. When they tried to contain him in the pocket, Elway, a running quarterback, would find a hole and run for big yardage up the middle.

Naturally, he was named the Sports Illustrated offensive player of the week.

"Before he's out of school, Elway will definitely be a Heisman winner," says none other than UCLA Coach Terry Donahue.

Season stats are 140 of 229 for 1,684 yards and 14 touchdowns with nine interceptions. The Cards are 5-2.

A list of other candidates might include Dave Wilson of Illinois. He outpassed Herrmann 425 yards to 371 yards last weekend. Or Donnie Little of Texas, or Rick Stockstill of Florida State.

Or Jim McMahon of BYU. He's 120 of 195 for 2,089 yards (eight interceptions) and on target for breaking the NCAA one-year touchdown record of 39. McMahon has six games left to add to his thus-far total of 23.

McMahon is 15 points ahead of everybody in passing efficiency and 57 yards on top in total offense. It seems reasonable to make him the prime candidate for All-America quarterback.

And a possible choice for the Heisman.

Soccercats 4 Metro State 1

By SPENCER CHRISTENSEN
Universe Staff Writer

The BYU soccercats took on Metro State of Colorado last night in a cold and cruel battle, and won 4 to 1. Cruel that is, if you attend Metro State. It was the Cougar's last season game in their Rocky Mountain League, and they proved their ability in play after play.

After several minutes of head to head competition, the Cougar's led off in scoring with a goal from forward Victor Trujillo. With ten minutes left in the first half, a corner kick to Trujillo set up the goal.

After several minutes of tight action in the second half, Guillermo Padilla scored through several defenders to give the Cougars their second of 4 goals.

Even though the night air was cold, the Cougars were hot with excellent passing throughout the game. They showed their style and top conditioning by controlling the ball for most of the contest.

Soccer can be, and often is, a contact sport. Even with two of the Cougars out with injuries after a very physical game with UCLA, other team members showed their talent against Metro State.

After a foul committed by Metro State inside BYU's penalty area, Trujillo scored again on a free kick. The Cougars went ahead 3 to 1.

Metro State pulled together to score one goal late in the second half. Bob MacCagham of Metro State shot the ball into the net from a corner kick to give them their only goal of the night.

The shot of the game came midway through the second half. Padilla took a pass from Cougar Brent Diamond, and without letting the ball reach the ground shot it off his head and rocketed the ball past a stunned goalie and into the net.

Cougar coach, Jim Dumas was pleased with the performance of his team. They are now 4-1-1 for the season in league play.

Harriers in Idaho

After a two-week absence from team competition, BYU's men's cross country team enters its fifth challenge of the season today at the Boise State Invitational in Idaho.

A lot of the Cougar harriers were sick with the flu last week, so Coach Sherald James waived team competition while the squad recovered. This weekend's competition should be the best thus far for the Cougars as a team, with most of the Western Athletic and Big Sky Conference schools being represented.

Doug Padilla has been BYU's most consistent runner this season. He placed third at the Aztec Invitational earlier this month in San Diego and most recently was the top collegian in the Ute Invitational at Salt Lake City two weeks ago.

The best 10,000-meter times to date are as follows:

Padilla (30:50.3); Greg Matthews (31:03.7); Phil Peterson (30:49.2); Terry Belt (31:56.6); John Rogers (31:43.3); Scott Olander (31:08.9); and Bryant Sampson (31:03.7).

Aggie passer honored

Utah State quarterback Bob Gaglano was named offensive player of the week by the Pacific Coast Athletic Conference.

WAC race thickens

By DOUGLAS L. MURPHY
Universe Staff writer

WAC football games this weekend could put BYU in the conference lead. After New Mexico's loss last weekend to Hawaii, and Utah's loss to Colorado State, the only team still undefeated in WAC play.

President Jeffrey Holland will be the guest at the weekly staff predictions of WAC and college conference football games.

This weekend, the Cougars will be traveling to Salt Lake to play the rejuvenated Rainbows, who are the winners of the 1979-80 season. The Rainbows have been working on their defense and hope to be able to stop the pass-happy offense.

It would take quite an effort, though, to stop the attack. The Cougs have thrown for 22 touchdowns in five weeks during a five-game winning streak.

CSU leader CSU will be traveling to Salt Lake as it prepares to meet with the University of Utah at Rice Stadium for the Utah Homecoming. Both teams now stand 4-3 overall on the season, although CSU is undefeated in WAC play.

McMahon: leads nation in offense

BYU quarterback Jim McMahon has completed 62 percent of his passes and has thrown 20,069 yards and 23 touchdowns in just six games this college football season. He's far and away the nation's leader in passing efficiency and total offense, and BYU as a result is easily the No. 1 passing team in the country.

McMahon may have figured he had some big footsteps to fill, playing for a team which also featured Virgil Carter, Gary Sheide, Gifford Nielsen and Marc Wilson. Wilson was particularly a tough act to follow, having set 12 NCAA records and 24 WAC marks. But after six games, McMahon is ahead of Wilson's record-setting pace of 1979 in most categories.

At this stage, both Wilson and McMahon had thrown for 300 yards in five straight games. McMahon, of course, has a chance to make it six in a row - which would break Wilson's record of 195 passes for 2,069 yards and 23 touchdowns. At this stage last year, Wilson had completed 144 of 244 for 2,028 yards and 14 TDs.

McMahon seems to prefer to throw deep and utilizes his wide receivers more than Wilson, who often dumped off to his running backs. McMahon has a higher yard-per-completion figure of 17.4 yards, compared with Wilson's 14.1.

If he doesn't erase Wilson's season records this year, McMahon still would have a shot at Wilson's career marks, since he's only a junior.

Tucker wins 100th tourney

With the opening of the new golf season, golf coach Karl Tucker marked his 100th tournament win for the 19 years that he has been at BYU.

"Winning 100 tournaments is a great thrill," said Tucker. "With playing about 10 tournaments a year it means we've won more than 50 percent of them. That's a pretty good record."

In the past 19 years, Tucker has brought his team to 136 dual match wins with only 15 losses. His teams have also won 10 of the last 15 WAC golf championships. He has also coached some outstanding golfers, including Johnny Miller, who has gone on to win most of the major golf opens; and Bobby Clampett, who took the Fred Haskins award (the highest award in collegiate golf) for two consecutive years.

Tucker has been named District Coach of the Year four times, and has won the Dale Rex award. Utah's most prestigious honor to a person contributing the most to athletics in the state.

Tucker attributes his success to the encouragement he gives his golfers toward being the best and working to maintain the success BYU golf teams have had in the past.

Jazz to host L.A. Lakers

Basketball fans in the Intermountain Area will have an excellent opportunity to catch the action of the 1980-81 edition of the Utah Jazz during the remainder of October. The Jazz has three more home games this month and two games on the road. Both road games will be broadcast back to Utah and surrounding areas via simulcast on KSL Radio, 1160AM, and KSL-TV, Channel 5 in Salt Lake City.

Veteran Adrian Dantley, who was named the NBA's first Player-of-the Week for the 1980-81 season, is leading the Jazz and the entire NBA in scoring with a 33.0 scoring average.

The Jazz will be looking for its second road win of the season tonight in San Diego against the Clippers. During the preseason the Clippers defeated the Jazz twice.

Saturday night, the defending world champion Los Angeles Lakers with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Magic Johnson will visit the Salt Palace for a 7:30 contest. It will be Utah Jazz Wristband Night as the 3,000 youngsters under 14 years of age entering the game will receive a pair.

Pamphlets serve as voting guide

Ballot guide pamphlets, which give detailed instructions and provisions of each ballot, are available at the College Republican and College Democrat booths and at the information desk in the Union Center.

A pamphlet is important because it will help to make sure that you don't vote as a result of ignorance, Karl N. Snow, a BYU professor of public administration and a state senator. "The tendency in 1975, was that if you don't know the issue, vote as you see."

A secretary of state's office last week sent pamphlets to all mailing addresses, but Snow said that students have been asking him about the pamphlets.

Snow is the second election in which Utahns have been asked to vote on a proposition. Snow, who proposed legislation for the ballot in 1975, said the guide has been used for in California.

Parrot's 'flight' cut short

SCOW, Idaho (AP) — Theo has been found — he is not talking.

The parrot's mysterious summer started three months ago when he flew away from his owners, Lynn Dirk Wischmeier of Moscow. Last month, he was found himself at home on one of northern Idaho's many roads.

Wischmeier placed a "found" ad in the paper. Everyone then knew where Theo was, but he knew how to catch him.

Wischmeier's parents, Cris and Carl, spent weeks trying to devise a way to catch the parrot.

They had been eating out of a bird feeder in the yard of one Mountainview resident. So, last week, Wischmeier put Theo's cage near the feeder. He attached a line of fish line to the cage door — so he could pull it shut from a distance.

Wischmeier went to catch the cage Saturday. He then checked first, though, she pulled the fish line around a corner of the house where she'd hidden. When she looked, she had the bird.

Wischmeier got a neighborhood full of new friends. Wischmeier said, "I wish everybody on the county road left their doors open trying to catch that dumb bird."

In the future, though, if Theo wants to touch lives, he'll have to do it from home. His wings have been clipped.

Horrors live again at Haunted Castle

The doors will creak open to Utah State Hospital's 13th Annual Haunted Castle from 7 to 11 p.m. Oct. 27-31.

The castle is located at 1300 East Center Street in Provo. Among the gallery of terrors will be "The Chamber of Horrors" and "The Maze."

Not only is the Haunted Castle a Halloween adventure, but it also serves a useful purpose. Proceeds are used to purchase recreation equipment for patients at the hospital. Admission is $3 at the door for adults, and $1 for children under six.

Students take GE exams free

First semester BYU students can challenge Category 1 general education examinations at no charge for a designated time period at the beginning of each semester.

Students enrolled in Category 1 or 2 G.E. classes may challenge the exams during any challenge period during the semester, except in specified courses. These courses can be determined by consulting the G.E. guidebook.

Students wishing to challenge courses they are not enrolled in may do so for a fee during any challenge period in the semester. The fee for Category 1 tests is $5. Category 2 examinations are $10.

Challenge periods are listed in the class-schedule booklets and the general education guidebook.

Signup deadline near for student teachers

Prospective elementary, secondary and special education student-teachers for the 1981 winter semester must make application and pay the $80 student teaching fee by Oct. 31. Applicants missing this deadline have until Nov. 7 to apply but will be charged a $10 late fee.

Dr. Clark D. Webb, director of the Education Advisement and Certification Office, said those students doing practicum assignments also must pay a fee according to the number of credit hours they are taking. Students should pick up a fee card prior to Oct. 31 from Roberta Chock, 120 MCKB.

Student teaching packets can be purchased at the information desk, second floor of the bookstore. After completing the required forms in the packet, students should bring their packet to EAC to be cleared and receive a fee card. The fee is to be paid at the Cashier's Office, ASB and then the packet is to be returned to EAC.

Big changes in Penney's listed by pioneer clerk

By TAMMI WRIGHT
Universe Staff Writer

J.C. Penney stores have changed a great deal since the department store chain first opened in 1909, according to Mrs. Rose Hazen, who worked as a clerk in the second J.C. Penney store to open.

Mrs. Hazen was on campus to meet with Walter Neppi, president of J.C. Penney Company, Inc., during his participation in Retail Week sponsored by the Skaggs Institute of Retail Management.

James Cash Penney, the founder of J.C. Penney, first opened his stores in small towns because he felt he could relate to the kind of people who lived in them, Neppi said.

"When I began working at J.C. Penney, it was just a little country store," Mrs. Hazen said. "My boss's wife and myself were the only clerks. We sold Lewis and overalls to ranchers and shepherders from the Cokeville, Wyo., area for about 79 cents a pair."

The store also sold yardage, wide-brimmed hats and shoes, she said. "I began working at J.C. Penney when I was 17 to help support my family," Mrs. Hazen said. "I got paid a dollar a day, with no extra for taking inventory."

At that time, people did not spend time browsing around a store before buying. "You never went into a store and touched anything until a clerk came to wait on you," she said. "Most people came in, asked for what they wanted, paid for it and left."

The only other store in Cokeville then was a mercantile store.

"Penney's was the main store in town," Mrs. Hazen said. "The mercantile's prices were higher and people were very poor. A ranch hand made about $40 a month and he couldn't afford to pay $50 for a suit."

Consumers today are looking for a different kind of service than was offered in the first J.C. Penney stores.

"Today's consumers are very selective," Neppi said. "They are cautious, intelligent, very sophisticated and do much more comparison shopping."

In an effort to better serve the needs of consumers whose average income is $15,000 to $30,000 a year, live in cities or suburbs and lead busy lives, J.C. Penney, Inc., has expanded its catalogue services, Neppi said.

"With over 50 percent of women working today, catalogue shopping is very convenient," he said. "If you don't want to run out and shop, you don't have to."

Although prices have increased, wages have also increased, Neppi said. "Employees are no longer paid a dollar a day," he said. "A clerk who has been with us for two years will make between $3.50 and $3.75 an hour."

"We have a consumer panel of about 1,000 randomly selected people who report to us what they buy, who they buy it from and what they pay for it," he said. "This helps us keep in touch with consumer needs and desires."

Y aids AP research project

BYU is the only university in the United States to be invited to submit a proposal to the Associated Press to serve as a consultant/coordinator for a research project in electronic news delivery to homes and businesses.

William Porter, an assistant professor of communications and executive editor of The Daily Universe, and E. A. Jerome, also an assistant professor of communications at BYU, submitted the proposal.

The project will use CompuServe Inc., a remote time-share computer service from Columbus, Ohio. CompuServe is a central computer system to which 11 selected AP member newspapers from throughout the United States will send news and advertising copy. This information will then be available to owners of home computer terminals which are connected to CompuServe through telephone lines.

The home computer system will allow readers to see all or part of a newspaper's news and advertising content between 6 p.m. and 5 a.m., Monday through Saturday, and all day Sunday.

The project will increase the amount of information available to the public, Porter said. "You can read a news story as it was written in the New York Times and compare it with a St. Louis Post-Dispatch story," he said. "You will have all the information the editor will have."

The AP's decision will be made at the end of the month. If BYU is selected for the project, the university will act as consultant to the 11 member newspapers and will train papers which later join the system.

Commission offers plan for opening auction barn

A Utah Valley antiques auctioneer may yet open the doors of his auction barn if he complies with county stipulations set Oct. 22, said a Utah County official.

The auction barn, owned by Ken Young of Benjamin, was closed more than 10 months ago because of noncompliance with zoning laws.

Young appealed the county ruling from the Fourth District Court to the Utah Supreme Court. The court determined Young could not operate his auction because it was in an area zoned for agricultural use.

Young recently asked the zoning commission for a zone change from agricultural to trades and services. The zoning commission recommended the change not be made, county planner Buck Rose said.

In the Wednesday meeting, the county commission presented to Young an eight-point plan, prepared by County Attorney Guy Burningham, outlining steps Young could take to reopen his auction barn.

The steps included: a text change in the zoning ordinance to create a general commercial zone; a zone change of Young's property to a general commercial zone; an inspection of the barn to determine what must be done to meet the specifications of the building, fire, and health codes; and the issuance of a business license to Young.

Burningham said the building could be inspected by the Provo building inspector and the state fire marshal instead of the county officials, because of personal differences between the county officials and Young. Young said he favored that suggestion.

The commissioners advised Young to first have the building inspected before applying for the zone change. The told Young he should make sure it was economically feasible to bring the structure to code before proceeding with the other steps. The commissioners said they were optimistic that Young would be able to reopen the barn, provided it could meet code.

Washing JB's dishes won't annul the bill

They didn't let you wash dishes anymore. If you cannot pay for your meal at the Provo JB's — watch out!

A Houston transient sat down to ground tip, baked potato, salad and a large milk at JB's Restaurant, 366 N. University Avenue in Provo, Wednesday night. By the time he picked up the tab his bill came to a $100 fine or 50 days in jail, according to Provo Police reports.

Charles Russell, Marsh 23, refused to pay $3.95 (plus tax) for his dinner, so he was escorted to Provo's police station by a patrolman. Marsh was put in the Utah County Jail with bail set at $100, police said. A spokesman for the jail said Marsh will remain incarcerated for 50 days.

"This guy (Marsh) has often refused to pay at JB's," police said. "He does it about once a month."

"We can't let people wash dishes or work off their bills because there is no insurance coverage for them," said Gayle Norton, assistant manager for JB's.

Norton said the only way bills could be worked off is if the offender were hired and put on the JB's payroll.

"They usually are not the caliber of people we like to hire," he said. "Most often we ask the person to leave something of value with us, like a watch, until they come in and pay the money owed," said waitress Cheryl Keller. Norton said incidents of people refusing to pay
